

FMD Politics and the Press Logistics and the Army

Dr. Robert Moeller

FMD
Politics and the Press
Logistics and the Army

Dr. Robert B. Moeller
California Veterinary Diagnostic Lab

Report raises doubt: Was the slaughter necessary?

By the time the sheep were being slaughtered, the disease had already spread to other parts of the flock, and the culling was necessary to prevent the disease from spreading further.

03M-02194 Model

THIS IS YOUR DRIVE
to get to the top

Cull may have been excessive, says foot-and-mouth adviser

A former adviser to the British government has said that the slaughter of sheep to control foot-and-mouth disease may have been excessive.

03M-02195 Model

Smoke from burning pyres 'will kill humans'

Army stops 'caused outbreak'

The outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in the UK was caused by the army's use of burning pyres to dispose of infected animals.

03M-02196 Model

©1998-2019 Miller
